Research projects / programs / infrastructure / support All funding requests for research (project-support and people-support) projects must be submitted during the Children's Hospital Foundation competitive research grant rounds. Health Services Research (HSR) projects must not be submitted through this grant round. The definition of HSR is as follows: HSR investigates the funding, organisation, management and delivery of new health care services, programs or initiatives to maximise value for patients whilst ensuring systems and processes are effective and efficient. HSR projects have well-defined patient outcomes metrics that accurately measure improved value for patients, with value defined as health outcomes achieved versus the cost of achieving these. Although you may consider that a project does not involve research, it may be determined that a health services research methodology should be used when conducting your project to achieve a maximum impact on children's health outcomes.
